It was unkind in the horse; he oughtn't have acted so. If he didn't refuse at the start to go with an editor, he has start to go with an editor, he has small thing if there were any other improveno one to blame, but himself, for any treatment he may have received. He can't plead ignorance as an excuse, for an editor is a public character. Every one is supposed to know him. If the horse was made to travel twice as P. His coming home by himself we Henderson James consider an insult to the profession, and more especially to this office. We presume our editor is now Lacey J. B. Horse-de-combat. He will now have occasion for all the "horse sense"he possesses. This is our only consolation. An exhibition of this kind will be gratifying. It will be something new-unusual-strange -out of the ordinary course of events, and may make develope ments heretofore never dreamed Paymed Ly 11 T. HELSHOOL TO
